A recent article (with a video included) on the BBC website highlights data visualization, including some of the work coming out of UCL CASA. You can view the article and video on the BBC News site.